GERMAN MINERS IN RUHR DISTRICT STRIKE

FRENCH TROOPS WITH BAYONETS ARE AT THE MINES, TROUBLE FEARED

No Mining Done at the State Mines, the Men Unanimously Joining in the Passive Resistance Demonstration Against Arrest of Mine Officials

Reported that a General Strike of Miners, Metal Workers, Railroad, Postal and Telegraph Employees Will Develop in Ruhr This Week

(By United Press)
Essen, Jan. 22.—German miners in the Ruhr today carried out their strike threats and refused to work.

Mines that supply a considerably part of all Germany's fuel were idle.

Grimy Westphalian workers lounged about the pits with folded arms. They appeared at the shaft heads at the usual hour this morning and were lowered into the pits.

French troops with bayoneted rifles were at some of the mines. No work was done at any of the state mines, however, the men unanimously joining in the passive resistance demonstration against arrest and imprisonment of mine officials.

Ruhr railroad men are also striking, a meeting of union officials today was to decide whether tieups of lines throughout the Ruhr should be made complete. Work was suspended on the central lines, noticeably on Paris-Berlin route that passes through Dortmund. Prominent rail officials were arrested because of this strike.

New Measures by French to Meet Strike

At the same time the French commander at Essen released Herr Ahrens, state mine director, whose return was hailed tumultuously by striking mine workers; troops were withdrawn from the vicinity of the state mines and from the Reichsbank at Essen; and the French pledged themselves to maintain only a small watch at railroad stations; this concession causing German railroad workers at South Dortmund to return to work.

HEART OF RUHR IS

STILLED IN PROTEST

The heart of Germany's richest fuel region was stilled today in passive protest against French invasion.

The test of Premier Poincare's reparations policy was on. Mines of the Ruhr valley were idle in protest against French occupation; against arrest of state officials; against the presence of pollux with bayoneted rifles in the shaft heads; and against the severing of all arteries connecting the Ruhr with the rest of Germany.

The strike started on schedule. Besides the state mines, seven Thyssen holdings and other private mines ceased operation. Miners lounged about, sullenly eyeing the French troops.

The first French move was one of conciliation.

Herr Ahrens, director of the state mines, whose arrest precipitated the strike, was freed; troops moved back from the mines and were withdrawn from the Essen branch of the Reichsbank.

But in Paris Foch and the French cabinet met and planned new military and economic movements to overcome Germany's passive resistance.

There was also a rail strike on in the Ruhr today; French troops at South Dortmund withdrew from the station, however, and some of the workers returned to the trains.

Reports of German troops movements near the Ruhr and of secret uprisings again were in active circulation. General Ludendorff was reported at Muenster. The French war office lacked confirmation of these rumors, and discredited them.

Shanghai with them, bringing a total of some 800 refugees from Siberia. They were refused landing at Shanghai and more than a week ago started for Manila where the advance guard arrived Saturday.

An American destroyer has gone to Lingwayen Gulf and will escort the fleet to Manila where it will be held pending an investigation and orders from Washington.

SANDY IS SHARP ENOUGH TO REMEMBER WHICH PEOPLE HAVE ENCOURAGED HIM, AND TO WAIT ON THEM AND SOLICIT THEIR CONTINUED FAVOR.

WOMEN VOTERS SUPPER TUESDAY

To be Given in the Parlors of the First Congregational Church 6 O'clock

SATISFYING MENU TO BE SERVED

After Supper a Debate will Follow on the Debts of the Allies and Other Provisions (Contributed)

On Tuesday evening, Jan. 23rd at 6 o'clock, the League of Women Voters will give a supper in the Congregational church parlors.

The following satisfying menu will be served: hot baked ham, escalloped potatoes, cabbage salad, hot rolls, pickles, jelly, cake and coffee. Tickets are at a reasonable price and as only 100 people can be served, reservations must be made in advance. Those who have not as yet procured tickets may do so by calling up any one of the ticket committee which consists of Mercedes E. O. Webb, W. C. Mannis and A. C. Weber.

After the supper there is to be a good, lively debate on this important, nationally discussed question viz. Resolved that this country forgive the debts of the Allies in exchange for effective measures of disarmament on the part of the debtor nations, such measures to be determined by an international conference.

There are two sides to every question and the opinions of some of the greatest minds of the world will be presented by both sides and afterward discussed. Mrs. W. A. Erickson has kindly consented to lead the community singing. Come out and eat and sing with us, then talk to us or listen with us, but come anyway.

Rifle and Shotgun Combined.

Four-barreled guns are a recent invention of an eastern gunsmith. They generally have two rifle and two shotgun barrels, although the arrangement is occasionally varied. Two shotgun barrels of the same gauge are usually placed on top, while below them are two rifle barrels, one of high caliber and the other of low caliber. In some designs the rifle barrels are placed one above and one below the two shotgun barrels. This type of gun, it is thought, will be of particular advantage for hunting in a territory where a wide variety of game abounds. The weight of the guns is about eight and a half pounds.

To Protect Plants.

Growers placed parchment cones over the hills of cantaloupes to protect the young plants against insects at the suggestion of the county extension agent in Dona Ana county, New Mexico. It was found that the temperature under the cones remained from five to ten degrees above that of the outside air, so that plants under them were not injured by a light freeze which killed unprotected plants in that district. The growers stated that the covers paid for themselves in securing better and more uniform germination aside from the protection against insects and frost.

BOY SCOUTS CHURCH SERVICE

An Excellent Program Rendered Sunday Evening to Congregation Which Filled Church

TALKS GIVEN ON SCOUT WORK

Moving Picture Entitled "The Boy Who Cried Wolf" Shown at 1st Methodist Church

The services at the Methodist church Sunday evening were in charge of the Boy Scouts, and they rendered an excellent program to a congregation which filled the church.

Talks on scout work were given by Harold Andrews, in charge of the movement in this city, Walter F. Wieland and Rev. E. A. Cooke.

Members of the local troop gave exhibitions in wig-wagging, semaphore signaling, bugling, first aid work and tenderfoot tests.

In addition to this interesting program a two reel moving picture was shown, entitled, "The Boy Who Cried Wolf."

At four o'clock Sunday afternoon the picture and a short program was shown the children of the city who cared to attend, in the hope of arousing interest in scout work among the eligibles, boys above the age of twelve years.

The Boys Scout movement has been given added impetus by the Brainerd Rotary club, who are fostering the work here, and it is hoped to have several troops working in full swing this season.

SLEIGH RIDE PARTY

Mixed Grade of the Washington School Makes a Tour out in the Country Friday Evening

The mixed grade of the Washington school gave a sleigh ride party on Friday evening and using a large hayrack liberally packed with straw as their conveyance, horses made three round trips to get them all out and back from the farm home of Miss Evelyn Gildart on the 13th street road.

The children played games after which a delightful lunch was served. All had a very good time, about 24 being present. It is hoped to give several similar parties in the near future.

PRESIDENT HARDING IS MUCH IMPROVED

(By United Press)

Washington, Jan. 22.—President Harding remained in his room at the White House today, abandoning his intentions to return to his desk in the executive offices.

The president's condition is much improved, Dr. Sawyer said after a call at the White House, but he advised the president to stay away from his office for another day in order that he might make a complete recovery before resuming his duties.

AMUSEMENTS

WALLACE REID VERSATILE

Popularity of Star Due to Consistent and Pains-taking Effort

Wallace Reid, after several years' success as a Paramount star, was perhaps one of the most famous screen luminaries in the country. It is indeed a pleasure to know that as the phonograph has perpetuated Caruso's voice, so will the film perpetuate the art and skill of this noted screen star who was loved by millions. A consistent standard of quality has been steadily maintained and he has experienced no loss or falling off in popularity.

He has been seen in a wide variety of roles, from light comedy to melodrama, thus proving himself one of the most versatile and capable of screen players. His appearance in Cecil B. deMille's production, "The Affairs of Anatol," in which he played the title role, placed him in a class by himself as a dramatic actor.

Mr. Reid has scored another triumph in his latest starring vehicle "The Hell Diggers," from the story by Byron Morgan which will be shown at the Lyceum tonight and Tuesday. In his past productions, Mr. Reid has driven all sorts of motor vehicles from locomotives to automobiles, but in this picture a new variety is introduced—the gold dredger. The star plays the role of a young construction superintendent of a California dredging company and the mammoth machines which pan thousands of yards of earth a day for the precious metal are the theme, plot and central idea of the new story.

Let Convictions Be Firm. To be longing for this thing today and that thing tomorrow; to change likings for loathings, and to stand wishing and hankering at a venture—how is it possible for any man to be at rest in this fluctuating humor and opinion?—L'Estrange.

Compliments. Compliments which we think are deserved, we accept only as debts, with indifference; but those which conscience informs us we do not merit, we receive with the same gratitude that we do favors given away.—Goldsmith.

BOY SCOUTS CHURCH SERVICE

An Excellent Program Rendered Sunday Evening to Congregation Which Filled Church

The services at the Methodist church Sunday evening were in charge of the Boy Scouts, and they rendered an excellent program to a congregation which filled the church.

Talks on scout work were given by Harold Andrews, in charge of the movement in this city, Walter F. Wieland and Rev. E. A. Cooke.

Members of the local troop gave exhibitions in wig-wagging, semaphore signaling, bugling, first aid work and tenderfoot tests.

In addition to this interesting program a two reel moving picture was shown, entitled, "The Boy Who Cried Wolf."

At four o'clock Sunday afternoon the picture and a short program was shown the children of the city who cared to attend, in the hope of arousing interest in scout work among the eligibles, boys above the age of twelve years.

The Boys Scout movement has been given added impetus by the Brainerd Rotary club, who are fostering the work here, and it is hoped to have several troops working in full swing this season.

SLEIGH RIDE PARTY

Mixed Grade of the Washington School Makes a Tour out in the Country Friday Evening

The mixed grade of the Washington school gave a sleigh ride party on Friday evening and using a large hayrack liberally packed with straw as their conveyance, horses made three round trips to get them all out and back from the farm home of Miss Evelyn Gildart on the 13th street road.

The children played games after which a delightful lunch was served. All had a very good time, about 24 being present. It is hoped to give several similar parties in the near future.

PRESIDENT HARDING IS MUCH IMPROVED

(By United Press)

Washington, Jan. 22.—President Harding remained in his room at the White House today, abandoning his intentions to return to his desk in the executive offices.

The president's condition is much improved, Dr. Sawyer said after a call at the White House, but he advised the president to stay away from his office for another day in order that he might make a complete recovery before resuming his duties.

AMUSEMENTS

WALLACE REID VERSATILE

Popularity of Star Due to Consistent and Painsstaking Effort
Wallace Reid, after several years' success as a Paramount star, was perhaps one of the most famous screen luminaries in the country. It is indeed a pleasure to know that as the phonograph has perpetuated Caruso's voice, so will the film perpetuate the art and skill of this noted screen star who was loved by millions. A consistent standard of quality has been steadily maintained and he has experienced no loss or falling off in popularity.

He has been seen in a wide variety of roles, from light comedy to melodrama, thus proving himself one of the most versatile and capable of screen players. His appearance in Cecil B. deMille's production, "The Affairs of Anatol," in which he played the title role, placed him in a class by himself as a dramatic actor.

Mr. Reid has scored another triumph in his latest starring vehicle "The Hell Diggers," from the story by Byron Morgan which will be shown at the Lyceum tonight and Tuesday. In his past productions, Mr. Reid has driven all sorts of motor vehicles from locomotives to automobiles, but in this picture a new variety is introduced—the gold dredger. The star plays the role of a young construction superintendent of a California dredging company and the mammoth machines which pan thousands of yards of earth a day for the precious metal are the theme, plot and central idea of the new story.

COLDS ARE CONTAGIOUS---BEWARE! FIRST SNEEZE IS YOUR WARNING

Dr. L. W. Giffin, Neenah, Wisconsin, practicing physician and throat specialist, during an epidemic of diphtheria used one prescription with great success.

His treatment dissolved and disintegrated the phlegm or mucous and assisted nature to carry the accumulated mass. The same prescription used for la grippe, tonsillitis, asthma, bronchitis, quinsy, whooping cough and kindred diseases, produced further marvelous results.

Dr. Giffin's prescription has become known among the druggists of the country as Mucosolvent Liquid. It is sold to the extent of thousands of bottles each year and today, forty years after its first use, is considered a valuable ally in many homes.

If you have an affliction seemingly impossible of correction get a bottle of Mucosolvent Liquid (75c and $1.00 at druggists) and take it according to directions. It is not an opiate and is absolutely safe for child or adult, being purely vegetable, composed of antiseptics so combined as to produce a specific for suppurative and inflammatory diseases of the mucous membrane.

MOTHER!

BABY'S NOSE IS RUNNING!

Bring the jar of Muco Salve, quick! Just a bit of this wonderful preparation in baby's nostrils opens his head, soothes and heals the delicate membranes of the nasal passages and respiratory tract.

No nasty medicines. No upset stomach. No sick baby. No danger.

IF TAKEN IN HAND AT ONCE COLD CAN BE STOPPED
IN THIRTY MINUTES

MUCO-SOLVENT SALVE IS BEST REMEDY
SAID TO RELIEVE WORST KIND OF A COLD IN ONE NIGHT—SAFE AND SIMPLE TO USE

From all sides come interesting reports of wonderful results obtained from the use of Muco-Solvent Salve in the treatment of colds and la grippe.

Emphasis is also laid upon the fact that this simple remedy is equally effective for adults and children, and being applied externally, it cannot cause derangement of the organs of digestion and elimination. Next to its efficacy the outstanding virtue is the utter simplicity of the treatment.

Inhale the Vapors

For ordinary cold in head melt a little Muco Salve in a spoon or tin cup and inhale the vapors, taking long, deep breaths. Relief is positively instantaneous for the nasal passages are immediately opened. Then insert salve in each nostril and breathe deeply to clear the upper respiratory tract.

Rub on Chest

If the cold is of long standing, follow the above method and rub Muco Salve liberally on chest, afterward covering same with warm cloths to promote absorption. Thus the congestion is scattered and if the patient will take a good laxative, cold will be about gone by morning. While the treatment is absurdly simple and is really based upon grandmother's old time poultices and plasters, the compounding of Muco-Solvent Salve is an operation requiring a knowledge of many scientific facts. The formula is the result of patient experiments and represents long laboratory research. This possibly accounts for the fact that similar preparations do not seem to be as effective.

No More Influenza

It is now predicted that the general use of Muco Salve will have much to do with the prevention of influenza. Especially if used as a preventive after being in the same room, lodge hall, church or other places where there are persons, young or old, with cold; for colds are very contagious and are the forerunner of la grippe, influenza and pneumonia.

Only 25 Cents

By reason of an enormous output Muco-Solvent Salve is sold at the reasonable price of 25 cents for the home size jar. It is therefore within the reach of poor and rich alike. At all druggists everywhere, among them H. P. Dunn Drug Store, Lammon's Drug Store, Skauge Drug Co., Johnson's Pharmacy. And by Folis Drug Co. and Lovdahl Drug Co. at Crosby.

Should a Girl Propose?

If she and her boy are fervently in love and he lacks the courage to pop the question, is a girl justified in taking matters in her own hands? Should she risk offending him by putting it to him point blank: "Will you be mine?" Or should she let time take its course and probably lose him altogether? These are problems that occupy the mind of modern girlhood. They are big with importance to the well-being of civilization itself. "When Love Comes" answers them all. See it at the New Park tonight only—young women especially—and you need worry no longer!

DISARMAMENT AND DEBTS

The League of Woman Voters has entered upon a large task. A vast amount of personal and public work will be required to convince the American people that the debts of the allies ought to be cancelled. An equally large amount of effort will be needed to convince the people of the United States that disarmament is desirable and, if desirable, possible.

Idealists conceive of the people generally as favoring disarmament but facts are against such a conception of the peoples will. There are very few leaders who go so far as to say that war is a wrong that cannot be excused by any possible set of circumstances. While Americans were insisting that our government's policy must be based on "Peace at any price," Germany did not share our views and kept on destroying our citizens on the high seas. Sentiment in this country was reversed. We went to war. And the most of our people believe that we were abundantly justified in so doing.

Our citizens will ask what America's position is to be in a world of reduced armaments. Of course, if Europe would disarm in lieu of cancellation of debts, while America continued thoroughly armed, we would have an advantage. But it is not likely that Europe would disarm unless America proportionately reduced its armaments. Again, unless our own armaments were reduced we would continue our large expenditures for armament and would gain no economic advantage. Our only advantage would lie in our superior strength—a strength that would not be needed against disarmed nations.

The whole question resolves itself into this. Is our idealism equal to the task of carrying the loss that would result from cancelling Europe's debts? There are two possible impulses that may be strong enough to gain an end. One of these is idealism and the other economic advantage. Advocates of prohibition did not put across their program by the use of idealistic appeal. It won out because of the stressing of the economic advantage that would accrue if liquor was outlawed. Opponents of prohibition attempted to meet such arguments by showing that taxation would be increased when the revenues from liquor licenses were not forthcoming. It was not until the champions of the movement against liquor had convinced the people that their pockets would not suffer but gain that the campaign was a success.

If economic advantage is strong enough to carry the ideal the ideal may be attained. People generally see the evil of war as they saw the evil of the saloon, but as economic advantage had to be demonstrated before the saloon was outlawed, such advantage will have to be proved before the American people demand a warless world. The ideal is not strong enough to carry economic disadvantage. And unless our armaments are so vastly reduced, through corresponding reductions in Europe, that we will save large expenditures on armaments, the people of the United States are going to ask what this country is to receive in return for cancelling the debts of the allies.

The ladies have taken upon themselves a large task—a task that will never be realized so long as human nature is what it is. But in proceeding with their work they are helping to shape human nature for the day when war shall be no more because its futility has been abundantly demonstrated.

ADDING THE WEST INDIES

ONE of the weaknesses of so much of present day thinking, even of legislators of whom better might be expected, lies in failure to see things whole. The one strong interest of the individual leads to the wish to serve that interest without any serious consideration of the interests that may suffer if that interest is served.

This attitude to questions is drawing men together in small groups and we have the bloc system in our legislative halls. But even this divisive factor, which prevents men from seeing things whole, is not sufficient to satisfy an age in which groups seek their will by any means. When a proposal is offered that the United States take over the British and French West Indies in lieu of the money this country advanced to these powers, legislators, who are obsessed by one idea, jump to the conclusion that if the United States held these islands violations of the Eighteenth amendment would be reduced.

It matters not to such legislators that their attitude may make it harder for statesmen to do the right thing. They care not that the President is opposed to the proposal. They do not consider the obligations that come when additional territories are made a part of our holdings. They are not interested in the desires of the peoples of these islands. They don't think of the problems raised by the islands we already hold and of the growing sentiment in this country that these ought to be given their independence. They don't consider the cost of administration. For them there are no problems. They read that liquor flows from these islands into the United States and conclude that if we took over the islands its flow would be stopped.

The aim that underlies their demand that we add the West Indies to our territories which would necessitate the development of a colonial policy is a good one. Rum running should be checked. They would solve one problem by adding a dozen. Such is the way of legislators who are obsessed by one idea.

LUMBERMEN PLAN CAMPAIGN

WHEN houses are going up and lots that have stood vacant are improved by the erection of commodious homes the people of a town become interested in the campaign of the lumbermen encouraging home-building. No business knows less criticism than that of the lumberman who attempts to build up the community by encouraging home-building by making possible financial aid to home-builders.

America did not know the same amount of interference with normal construction programs as other countries while the war was continued. But even America lost ground which has not yet been regained. Therefore, our people are interested in the efforts that lumbermen are making to provide sufficient homes to house the people. While their efforts are not built on unselfish motives people see that their energy directed to this end will bring general advantage by reducing rents and improving communities.

Brainerd will see a large increase in home building in 1923 and our people will take advantage of those organizations which, working with the lumbermen, will make possible the financing of those home-building projects which they have been considering but have not been able to undertake. The uniting of self-interest and service for others underlies the program of lumbermen whose home building campaign will be of advantage to themselves, the home builder and the community.

MIXED-UP PILGRIMS

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

To tell the truth, Arabella Wilcox was a very pretty girl, and a very nice girl in every way, but she was not what is called "intellectual." Arabella got along very well until she met Rex Hamilton. Hamilton was the catch of the season. But, alas! he was "literary," had written a book and talked literature, and all the girls had a terrible time studying up in order to be able to talk with him on anything like passable terms.

As it was, she was constantly on guard to foil his attempt to talk books with her and only saved herself on several occasions by cutting short conversations which were otherwise exceedingly agreeable to her. Mr. Hamilton, she thought, was delightful, but between him and her she realized was a great gulf fixed—her absolute ignorance of literature. She was sure to make some awful break if she talked with him for any length of time.

"Why did I cut literature so at school?" she asked herself remorsefully. So it was with very mixed feeling that she heard her mother say one day, "Bella, dear, Mr. Hamilton is going to drop in to tea this afternoon. Be sure and show him that your father and I did not waste our money on your education. It cost enough, goodness knows! Hamilton is a great catch and very literary. He's written a book, they say. Your father and I never had the early advantages you have had. But we want to show Mr. Hamilton that, though we may not be literary ourselves, perhaps, we have a daughter who is."

"But, mother," cried Bella against, "I am awfully rusty on literature. I never was any good at it, anyway. You know I wasn't. Oh, dear, I am sure to make some horrid blunder if I am forced to talk about books with Mr. Hamilton. Don't ask me to, I can't, I can't."

"Can't!" cried Mrs. Wilcox. "And you a graduate of the Melton Mowbray School for Young Ladies? I am ashamed of you. You must. Hamilton is always wanting to talk about you every time I meet him. What do you mean, ungrateful child? Do you want to die an old maid, with such a chance as Hamilton before you? There, go along with you and be sure you do as I tell you."

Her mother's harangue only added to the trepidation with which Bella met Mr. Rex Hamilton at the tea table that afternoon. And her trepidation grew into absolute horror when, in spite of Bella's attempts to keep the conversation in channels leading as far as possible away from the rocks of literature, Mrs. Wilcox obstinately and resolutely sent the current running back to the subject Bella was trying to avoid. And, not content with that, the fond mother openly boasted to Hamilton of her daughter's great proficiency in matters literary.

DISARMAMENT AND DEBTS

THE League of Woman Voters has entered upon a large task. A vast amount of personal and public work will be required to convince the American people that the debts of the allies ought to be cancelled. An equally large amount of effort will be needed to convince the people of the United States that disarmament is desirable and, if desirable, possible.

Idealists conceive of the people generally as favoring disarmament but facts are against such a conception of the peoples will. There are very few leaders who go so far as to say that war is a wrong that cannot be excused by any possible set of circumstances. While Americans were insisting that our government's policy must be based on "Peace at any price," Germany did not share our views and kept on destroying our citizens on the high seas. Sentiment in this country was reversed. We went to war. And the most of our people believe that we were abundantly justified in so doing.

Our citizens will ask what America's position is to be in a world of reduced armaments. Of course, if Europe would disarm in lieu of cancellation of debts, while America continued thoroughly armed, we would have an advantage. But it is not likely that Europe would disarm unless America proportionately reduced its armaments. Again, unless our own armaments were reduced we would continue our large expenditures for armament and would gain no economic advantage. Our only advantage would lie in our superior strength—a strength that would not be needed against disarmed nations.

The whole question resolves itself into this. Is our idealism equal to the task of carrying the loss that would result from cancelling Europe's debts? There are two possible impulses that may be strong enough to gain an end. One of these is idealism and the other economic advantage. Advocates of prohibition did not put across their program by the use of idealistic appeal. It won out because of the stressing of the economic advantage that would accrue if liquor was outlawed. Opponents of prohibition attempted to meet such arguments by showing that taxation would be increased when the revenues from liquor licenses were not forthcoming. It was not until the champions of the movement against liquor had convinced the people that their pockets would not suffer but gain that the campaign was a success.

If economic advantage is strong enough to carry the ideal the ideal may be attained. People generally see the evil of war as they saw the evil of the saloon, but as economic advantage had to be demonstrated before the saloon was outlawed, such advantage will have to be proved before the American people demand a warless world. The ideal is not strong enough to carry economic disadvantage. And unless our armaments are so vastly reduced, through corresponding reductions in Europe, that we will save large expenditures on armaments, the people of the United States are going to ask what this country is to receive in return for cancelling the debts of the allies.

The ladies have taken upon themselves a large task—a task that will never be realized so long as human nature is what it is. But in proceeding with their work they are helping to shape human nature for the day when war shall be no more because its futility has been abundantly demonstrated.

ADDING THE WEST INDIES

ONE of the weaknesses of so much of present day thinking, even of legislators of whom better might be expected, lies in failure to see things whole. The one strong interest of the individual leads to the wish to serve that interest without any serious consideration of the interests that may suffer if that interest is served.

This attitude to questions is drawing men together in small groups and we have the bloc system in our legislative halls. But even this devious factor, which prevents men from seeing things whole, is not sufficient to satisfy an age in which groups seek their will by any means. When a proposal is offered that the United States take over the British and French West Indies in lieu of the money this country advanced to these powers, legislators, who are obsessed by one idea, jump to the conclusion that if the United States held these islands violations of the Eighteenth amendment would be reduced.

It matters not to such legislators that their attitude may make it harder for statesmen to do the right thing. They care not that the President is opposed to the proposal. They do not consider the obligations that come when additional territories are made a part of our holdings. They are not interested in the desires of the peoples of these islands. They don't think of the problems raised by the islands we already hold and of the growing sentiment in this country that these ought to be given their independence. They don't consider the cost of administration. For them there are no problems. They read that liquor flows from these islands into the United States and conclude that if we took over the islands its flow would be stopped.

The aim that underlies their demand that we add the West Indies to our territories which would necessitate the development of a colonial policy is a good one. Rum running should be checked. They would solve one problem by adding a dozen. Such is the way of legislators who are obsessed by one idea.

LUMBERMEN PLAN CAMPAIGN

WHEN houses are going up and lots that have stood vacant are improved by the erection of commodious homes the people of a town become interested in the campaign of the lumbermen encouraging home-building. No business knows less criticism than that of the lumberman who attempts to build up the community by encouraging home-building by making possible financial aid to home-builders.

America did not know the same amount of interference with normal construction programs as other countries while the war was continued. But even America lost ground which has not yet been regained. Therefore, our people are interested in the efforts that lumbermen are making to provide sufficient homes to house the people. While their efforts are not built on unselfish motives people see that their energy directed to this end will bring general advantage by reducing rents and improving communities.

Brainerd will see a large increase in home building in 1923 and our people will take advantage of those organizations which, working with the lumbermen, will make possible the financing of those home-building projects which they have been considering but have not been able to undertake. The uniting of self-interest and service for others underlies the program of lumbermen whose home building campaign will be of advantage to themselves, the home builder and the community.

MIXED-UP PILGRIMS

By H. IRVING KING

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

To tell the truth, Arabella Wilcox was a very pretty girl, and a very nice girl in every way, but she was not what is called "intellectual." Arabella got along very well until she met Rex Hamilton. Hamilton was the catch of the season. But, alas! he was "literary," had written a book and talked literature, and all the girls had a terrible time studying up in order to be able to talk with him on anything like passable terms.

As it was, she was constantly on guard to foil his attempt to talk books with her and only saved herself on several occasions by cutting short conversations which were otherwise exceedingly agreeable to her. Mr. Hamilton, she thought, was delightful, but between him and her she realized was a great gulf fixed—her absolute ignorance of literature. She was sure to make some awful break if she talked with him for any length of time.

"Why did I cut literature so at school?" she asked herself remorsefully. So it was with very mixed feeling that she heard her mother say one day, "Bella, dear, Mr. Hamilton is going to drop in to tea this afternoon. Be sure and show him that your father and I did not waste our money on your education. It cost enough, goodness knows! Hamilton is a great catch and very literary. He's written a book, they say. Your father and I never had the early advantages you have had. But we want to show Mr. Hamilton that, though we may not be literary ourselves, perhaps, we have a daughter who is."

"But, mother," cried Bella abashed, "I am awfully rusty on literature. I never was any good at it, anyway. You know I wasn't. Oh, dear, I am sure to make some horrid blunder if I am forced to talk about books with Mr. Hamilton. Don't ask me to. I can't, I can't."

"Can't," cried Mrs. Wilcox. "And you a graduate of the Melton Mowbray School for Young Ladies? I am ashamed of you. You must, Hamilton is always wanting to talk about you every time I meet him. What do you mean, ungrateful child? Do you want to die an old maid, with such a chance as Hamilton before you? There, go along with you and be sure you do as I tell you."

Her mother's harangue only added to the trepidation with which Bella met Mr. Rex Hamilton at the tea table that afternoon. And her trepidation grew into absolute horror when, in spite of Bella's attempts to keep the conversation in channels leading as far as possible away from the rocks of literature, Mrs. Wilcox obstinately and resolutely sent the current running back to the subject Bella was trying to avoid. And, not content with that, the fond mother openly boasted to Hamilton of her daughter's great proficiency in matters literary.

Miniature Switchboard is Connected up With Real Telephones

OPERATOR ANSWERS CALLS
Local Manager, District Manager, and Operator Give Talks In Explanation

Much interest has been aroused in the demonstrations recently put on in Brainerd by the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company, and it is possible that these exhibitions may be continued.

The company has special equipment for these demonstrations, consisting of a miniature switchboard, identical in operation to the large ones used at central offices, and connected to real telephone instruments fastened to make-believe houses, thus giving more of the "Natural Touch" to the work.

The first exhibition of this apparatus was made through the courtesy of Manager H. D. Hoffmann at the Lions club Wednesday evening, and again at the Rotary club luncheon Friday noon.

At both of these demonstrations officials of the company were present, being Ralph Boorman, district commercial manager from St. Cloud, Miss May Wicklund, also of that city, as demonstrator, Miss Cecil Kampmann, chief operator of the Brainerd exchange, and Riley Pettitt, wire chief.

Mr. Boorman gave an interesting review of the history of the telephone and the hardships and get-bet-through which it passed in its early stages.

Miss Wicklund put on an instructive demonstration showing with the actual instruments and central switchboard just what happens when a subscriber puts through a telephone call. She also illustrated how wrong numbers are often caused, as well as delayed calls and disconnections made before the parties have finished their conversations.

It was further demonstrated that while each operator is only able to answer the number of patrons whose numbers are on her particular switchboard, still it is possible for her to ring any subscriber in the exchange, by a complicated arrangement of an upper board.

In concluding her demonstration, Miss Wicklund plead for co-operation between patrons and the telephone girls so that the service rendered may be steadily improved. This sentiment was put in concrete form at the Rotary club, which passed a motion to the effect that the members of the club, as gentlemen at one end of the line, appreciate the fact that there is a lady at the other end of the wire, and will act accordingly.

At the meeting of the Exchange club, composed of all employees of the local exchange, on Thursday evening, the same demonstration, greatly elaborated, was put on. This was divided into three sections, the switchboard section, a motion picture, and an instructive lecture.

Visiting telephone employees from Staples, Wadena, Little Falls, Royalton, Aitkin and Crosby were also in attendance, and held a convention on Thursday afternoon. The balance of the evening session following the demonstration, was given over to dancing. A luncheon was also served.

A large number of requests have come in asking that the complete program be given at the Chamber of Commerce in the near future, and Manager Hoffman is making arrangements for this exhibition, the date of which will be announced later.

Residence of Charles Carlson, 1307 Quince Street, Guttered by Flames

The fire department answered a call at 6:45 Monday morning to 1307 Quince Street, to extinguish a fire in the residence of Charles Carlson.

It is stated that the family was not at home at the time of the fire, which accounts for the start it got on the firemen. The conflagration seems to have begun in the living room and spread quickly throughout the entire building.

SMALLPOX NEARLY STOPS A SUIT

Interfered with the Administration of Justice in the Vicinity of McGregor

NO $15,000 BOND WAS FILED

Plaintiff William Beidleman and Sureties Unable to Come to Brainerd in Aitkin Courthouse Case

Smallpox in the vicinity of McGregor has interfered with the administration of justice. It happened this way. William Beidleman of McGregor was the chief mover in getting a temporary injunction restraining the Aitkin county commissioners from concluding a contract to build a new courthouse, Beidleman alleging no bonds had been issued by the county and that there was not sufficient funds on hand.

Beidleman was to put up a bond of $15,000, to indemnify the defendants against any damages by reason of the injunction. Now neither Beidleman nor his sureties, tied up in the quarantine, can come to Brainerd to qualify on the bond. Judge W. S. McClenahan extended the time in which he was to appear.

"Notwithstanding no bond has been furnished," said C. A. Ryan, of Ryan & Ryan, Brainerd attorneys, "the case will come before the March term of the district court in Aitkin at which time the judge will decide whether the injunction is to be made permanent or the case to be dismissed."

The Aitkin Independent Age takes this view of the case in its last issue:

This is the last day the court house objectors have to file their bond for $15,000 to hold their temporary injunction in effect until the March term of court and it has been stated on good authority that no attempt will be made to do so.

Even the leaders in the attempt to obstruct the work of the county board in going ahead with the plans started a couple of years ago to secure a new court house without issuing bonds seem to be satisfied that the arrangements are all right and the contract pending is a desirable one.

It is expected that the injunction will terminate today and the firm awarded the contract will be notified to proceed.

Officer Abrahamson, who took the temporarily demented man to the hospital, stayed until three in the morning and was relieved by one of the Railway guards who stayed until six o'clock. Fred A. Bacon took charge from that time until relatives arrived about noon Saturday.

Brainerd Men See Representatives Long and Fowler and Senator Adams About Changes

F. M. Hagberg, member of the board of education, and Superintendent W. C. Cobb were in St. Paul the latter part of last week, and while there attended to several business matters in connection with school work.

They also met two or three architects whom they interviewed regarding plans for high school buildings, which will be of value if a new building is erected in Brainerd.

While in the capitol Mr. Hagberg met and talked with Representative P. J. Long from Crow Wing county. Representative Fowler of Two Harbors and Senator Adams of Duluth.

Mr. Fowler is the author of a bill which would refund a part of the state's gross earnings tax to cities between 2300 and 10,000 population. The manner in which this bill was originally drafted was not satisfactory to cities situated as Brainerd is, with quite a little railway property, and seemed to benefit the town of Two Harbors only. In a resolution sent to representatives from Crow Wing county by the Chamber of Commerce, the bill as it was first drafted was opposed although some bill which would help cities like Brainerd was suggested by the resolution.

Mr. Hagberg states that in his conversation with Representative Fowler, the latter seemed anxious to remodel his bill, so that it would be acceptable to other cities as well as to Two Harbors. It is understood that if such a measure is drawn up, Brainerd will sponsor it.

The fire department answered a call at 6:45 Monday morning to 1307 Quince Street, to extinguish a fire in the residence of Charles Carlson.

The flames had gained considerable headway before the truck was called, and the interior of the house was completely gutted. All of the furniture was destroyed.

It is stated that the family was not at home at the time of the fire, which accounts for the start it got on the firemen. The conflagration seems to have begun in the living room and spread quickly throughout the entire building.

SMALLPOX NEARLY STOPS A SUIT

Interfered with the Administration of Justice in the Vicinity of McGregor

NO $15,000 BOND WAS FILED
Plaintiff William Beidleman and Sureties Unable to Come to Brainerd in Aitkin Courthouse Case

Smallpox in the vicinity of McGregor has interfered with the administration of justice. It happened this way. William Beidleman of McGregor was the chief mover in getting a temporary injunction restraining the Aitkin county commissioners from concluding a contract to build a new courthouse, Beidleman alleging no bonds had been issued by the county and that there was not sufficient funds on hand.

Beidleman was to put up a bond of $15,000, to indemnify the defendants against any damages by reason of the injunction. Now neither Beidleman nor his sureties, tied up in the quarantine, can come to Brainerd to qualify on the bond. Judge W. S. McClenahan extended the time in which he was to appear.

"Notwithstanding no bond has been furnished," said C. A. Ryan, of Ryan & Ryan, Brainerd attorneys, "the case will come before the March term of the district court in Aitkin at which time the judge will decide whether the injunction is to be made permanent or the case to be dismissed."

The Aitkin Independent Age takes this view of the case in its last issue: "This is the last day the court house objectors have to file their bond for $15,000 to hold their temporary injunction in effect until the March term of court and it has been stated on good authority that no attempt will be made to do so."

Even the leaders in the attempt to obstruct the work of the county board in going ahead with the plans started a couple of years ago to secure a new court house without issuing bonds seem to be satisfied that the arrangements are all right and the contract pending is a desirable one.

It is expected that the injunction will terminate today and the firm awarded the contract will be notified to proceed.

AITKIN JANITOR GOES HOME

Relatives Accompany Oliver Chatell Who Was in Hospital Having Wounds Treated

Oliver Chatell who attempted suicide Friday night at the Brainerd depot, had recovered sufficiently from his self-inflicted wounds to be able to return to his home in Aitkin, where he has been janitor of the public schools. He was accompanied by relatives who came from Aitkin Saturday.

His condition Friday night was such that it required an attendant constantly. Officer Abrahamson, who took the temporarily demented man to the hospital, stayed until three in the morning and was relieved by one of the Railway guards who stayed until six o'clock. Fred A. Bacon took charge from that time until relatives arrived about noon Saturday.

REV. J. M. STORSTAD DIED

Was Cousin of I. J. Storstad of Brainerd and Senator A. G. Storstad

I. J. Storstad has received a telegram conveying the sad news that his cousin, Rev. J. M. Storstad of Horacy, N. D. passed away on last Friday. The message was sent by Senator A. G. Storstad, brother of the deceased.

This news comes as a severe shock to Crow Wing county relatives since Rev. Storstad was one of the church's most promising clergymen, and was only thirty-two years of age. He was well known in Brainerd and vicinity where he had visited on several occasions.

GROSS EARNINGS TAX BILL
Brainerd Men See Representatives Long and Fowler and Senator Adams About Changes

F. M. Hagberg, member of the board of education, and Superintendent W. C. Cobb were in St. Paul the latter part of last week, and while there attended to several business matters in connection with school work.

They also met two or three architects whom they interviewed regarding plans for high school buildings, which will be of value if a new building is erected in Brainerd.

While in the capitol Mr. Hagberg met and talked with Representative P. J. Long from Crow Wing county, Representative Fowler of Two Harbors and Senator Adams of Duluth.

Mr. Fowler is the author of a bill which would refund a part of the state's gross earnings tax to cities between 2300 and 10,000 population. The manner in which this bill was originally drafted was not satisfactory to cities situated as Brainerd is, with quite a little railway property, and seemed to benefit the town of Two Harbors only. In a resolution sent to representatives from Crow Wing county by the Chamber of Commerce, the bill as it was first drafted was opposed although some bill which would help cities like Brainerd was suggested by the resolution.

Mr. Hagberg states that in his conversation with Representative Fowler, the latter seemed anxious to remodel his bill, so that it would be acceptable to other cities as well as to Two Harbors. It is understood that if such a measure is drawn up, Brainerd will sponsor it.

Two Men Charged with Reckless Driving Fined $15 Each in Court

Wallace Eastman and Dwight McFerran were fined $15 each in municipal court on a charge of reckless driving. They were picked up by the police Sunday afternoon.

The police department have been on the lookout for one, Valentine M. Schrount, of Pierz, Minn., who is alleged to have been in the liquor traffic between his home and Brainerd since the Volstead act went into force.

Chief Erick Graff obtained the number of Schrount's Buick and sent it in to the secretary of state who furnished the name of the owner and his residence.

Schrount was in the city Saturday evening and the police followed him

DEMPSEY TO DEFEND TITLE IN 1923

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, Jan. 22—Jack Dempsey beyond all doubt will fight someone, someplace, sometime, this year. The heavyweight champion may not be in need of coin as he has been doing stage work at a fat weekly stipend, but it is a cinch he does need work if he is to retain his form.

Had he not been tied up with a vaudeville contract, it is probable that Dempsey would have engaged in some kind of an engagement last year. He tried to worm out of the stage work, but when a law suit was threatened he went through with it and it took until Christmas to finish it.

Finding opponents for a heavyweight championship bout is not as difficult as finding the money to pay the champ for his end. Jack Kearns has an idea that Dempsey as one end of any kind of a bout is worth at least $100,000. He may be right, but the promoters can't find a place big enough for that kind of an indoor show.

If Dempsey wants to fight this year, he probably can have his pick of Harry Wills, Luis Firpo, Tommy Gibbons, Georges Carpentier, Joe Beckett or Floyd Johnson.

Wills probably will be sidetracked, as most of the promoters big enough to pull off such a show are afraid of the color issue that would be sure to be drawn into it.

Firpo is being built up by Tex Richard for a crack at the title and if the South American giant continues to show the improvement, the bout may be staged in South America, where Firpo is a national idol.

Top prices of $75 were charged for the bout sometime ago between Firpo and Jim Tracey, the worn out former Australian champion, and if the South Americans are that keen about boxing they would pay more to see their hero take a crack at the champion.

Despite the fact that Tommy Gibbons is one of the best heavyweights in the class, the St. Paul boy has been unable to get a bout with Dempsey.

Gibbons did not bother Dempsey with challenges until he felt that he had developed to the point where he would give the champion a good fight. Several challenges to Dempsey brought no response and several offers made by promoters were also unanswered.

Gibbons, off course, is somewhat smaller than Dempsey, but size is no great factor in the heavyweight class, as Dempsey proved against Willard.

If any of the contenders for the title has a real chance to beat Dempsey, it is Gibbons. He is fast on his feet, he can box, he has had experience and he can hit with either hand. He is a great fighter and he is as good at close quarters as Dempsey.

Gibbons wants to fight with Dempsey next summer and he ought to get it. He is popular around New York and there is no doubt that it would be a good card for any promoter.

Ungallant Swain.

He was twelve, I was eleven. He asked me to go to a dance. I consented. The dance was about one mile away, so we had to take the car. When we got there he was struck on another girl. When it was time to go home, he told me he was going to take this other girl home. I was left to find my way home alone.—Chicago Journal.

"Stentorian."

The word "stentorian" comes from the name of a Grecian herald named Stentor, whose voice, according to legend, was as loud as that of 50 men shouting together.

League Night

Tonight is league night. The following teams are scheduled to oppose each other: Frank & James vs. Study Club and Smraker vs. Alderman & Maghan. Some splendid scores were piled up the opening night of the league a week ago and all indications point to still better scores as the season advances.

Hit 'em hard and hit 'em right, Knock the head pin on a strike; Take your time and make the spares, They count ten in the little squares. Get a ball that fits your hand, Snag at the fingers and right span, Judge your distance and your stride To about three yards and little to the side.

Smash the head pin every round And you'll be sure for Brainerd town.

The Wadena team who were scheduled to roll against the locals Saturday night failed to arrive, due to the inability of one of their star bowlers to leave town. They expect to be here in the near future but no definite date has been set.

Conservative Estimate.

One explanation and definition of the meaning of "conservative estimate" is found in the assertion of a professor at the University of California, who says that the human race improves 1 per cent in 25,000 years.—Cincinnati Engineer.

SAGE TEA BEAUTIFIES AND DARKENS HAIR

Don't Stay Gray! It Darkens So Naturally that Nobody Can Tell

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days. Adv.
